

Tohi Aronia Infused Gin

Tangy & Lush

The foundation of Tohi Distillery is to offer bold taste sensations. So many interesting things to experiment with can be found in our own Estonian forests and gardens. The aronia is a vitamin-rich super-berry, well-known around here, with a characteristic taste that your mind and tongue will remember. We combine the aronia together with gin, and the result is a completely special, full-bodied and rich taste. We gather aronia berries from Estonian gardens, and stomp the juice out with our feet, just like in historic little wineries in Europe. Then, the mixture of berries, their skin and juice is mixed with the gin, made according to a special recipe, and is left to rest for half a year. After that, it is filtered, and the ruby red aronia gin is ready to be bottled.

We make the aronia gin only once per year and in a limited amount.

APPEARANCE

Deep dark red.

AROMA

Aromatic, fruity, with hints of wormwood and herbs.

TASTE

A walk in an August garden. An acerbic taste, as if characteristic of a bitter, and at the same time, a lush berry taste that is tannic and surprisingly dry. Character-filled aronia, soft juniper berry, the exoticism of cinnamon, spicy cardamom, and a dash of dried green herbs. A unique and well-balanced taste. The aftertaste of the gin is pleasantly long and slightly flushing.

SERVING

To prepare a truly Nordic aperitif, take a Copa glass, fill it with ice. Then, pour 4 cl of Tohi Aronia Infused Gin and add 20 cl of high-quality tonic. Enhance the flushing cocktail with a slice of orange.

TOHI DISTILLERY

We manufacture Tohi gins in the old distillery at Tohisoo Manor, with a history reaching back to the 19th century. Spirits or vodka have not been made here for decades, but they have made handbags – the Linda leather factory manufactured gloves and bags at Tohisoo until the 1990s! In 2018, the building awoke from a longer slumber, copper cauldrons and other equipment moved in, to provide a home for fascinating gin tastes.
